Brief Report

Tristan Rex is an only child. They live in a flood-prone area near an open drainage canal. During heavy rains, the neighborhood often experiences flooding, necessitating evacuations. The presence of the open canal exacerbates the risk, as it can overflow, leading to swift and dangerous flooding.

His father has been working as a delivery rider for 10 years, earning ₱15,000 monthly. However, after deductions for benefits, his take-home pay is approximately ₱10,000. His mother works as an analyst for a logistics company, earning ₱15,000 per month. Despite both parents being employed, they face financial challenges and often struggle to make ends meet. They are currently paying ₱2,000 monthly for a motorcycle loan and ₱2,500 monthly for water, as they do not have their own water supply and rely on refilling stations, and electricity bill is 2,000.
